Secondary Traumatic Stress

Vicarious Trauma

“Vicarious trauma is the process of change that happens (to you) because you care about other people who have been hurt, and feel committed or responsible to help them.”

(Pearlman, 2008)

Understanding Vicarious Trauma

- ▶ There isn't always a direct connection between what happens, the event, and how a person is impacted or the level in which a person is traumatized.
- ▶ It is CUMULATIVE (Occurs over time).
- ▶ There may not be an end to it as it is based on a series of events and/or reactions. This differs from Secondary trauma, which can reach a conclusion as it is typically one event.
- ▶ Person-focused, not-symptom focused.

(Perlman)
